Administration Awaits Results of Investigation Into Sinking of British and Neutral Vessels Off the Atlantic Coast

ACTION DEPENDS UPON BEHAVIOR OF RAIDERS

If Passengers Were Given Chance To Save Themselves United States Will Take No Steps, Say Officials At State Department

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—

The final decision of the attitude which the United States will take toward the sinking of a number of British and neutral ships off the Atlantic coast last Sunday by a German raider, will depend upon what steps the U-S3 took to secure the safety of the passengers on board the vessels she sent to the bottom of the ocean.

If it is found that she did all in her power to give ample protection to the women and children, and saw to it that they were out of harm's way before she struck, the United States will have nothing to say. Just what will be done should the investigation which the state department is now conducting, proves that the sea rover sent her quarry to their doom without such provisions was not intimidated by the governmental officials here last night.

Refused Allied Request.

Counselor Falk of the state department announced that the United States has refused to accept the contention of the Allies, urging neutral nations to deny the use of their harbors to submarines, whether merchantmen or warships.

The United States takes the position that war submarines are of the same status, so far as international law is concerned, as are other warships, and may use American harbors under similar restrictions and regulations.

The memorandum which the state department has been preparing in reply to the communication received Monday from the Allied powers, regarding the treatment of belligerent submarines in neutral waters, has been practically complete. It is one of the subjects taken up at a conference held between Secretary of State Lansing and President Wilson at Shadow Lawn, New Jersey, yesterday afternoon. It is known that it expresses surprise at the attitude adopted by the Entente powers at this point, which it terms an "evident endeavor to determine the rule by which neutral powers are to be guided in their treatment of belligerent submarines." It adds that the "United States reserves to itself liberty of action in this and in all other respects."

Makes Position Clear.

"In order that there may be no misunderstanding," the memorandum continues, "the United States hereby announces that it holds that it is the duty of belligerents to distinguish between neutral and belligerent submarines, and that the responsibility of any conflict must rest entirely upon any negligent power."

The memorandum from the Allies to which the above is the answer, says that in view of the conditions under which submarines wage war they would urge upon all neutral nations that they exclude all submarines from the rules laid down for the treatment of belligerent ships of war and detain such divers as enter neutral waters.

Crew Still Missing.

The crew of the Kingstonian have not yet been picked up although a number of torpedo boats, acting under orders of the United States naval authorities at Newport, Rhode Island, are still scouring the sea in the vicinity of the spot where the steamer was sunk by the German raider Sunday. Fears for the safety of these men are beginning to become acute, and it is believed that they could have had but little store of food in the boats when they went over the side.

The crew was of about 50 men. First reports gave the name of one of the "Kingstonian" vessels as the "Kingston," a New Englander. This was probably a mistake. The Kingstonian is a British four-masted steamer of 6500 tons, belonging to the Leyland company. It is fitted for passenger travel but as nothing is mentioned in the despatches concerning passengers, probably only the crew was aboard when the submarine made its raid.

The question of whether there were three submarines engaged in the attacks on the merchant craft Sunday, or

JAPANESE PREMIER SENDS OLIVE BRANCH TO AMERICA

Sword Will Not Be Waved While He Is In Power

TOKIO, October 11.—Count Terauchi, newly created premier of Japan, last night issued through the local representative of The Associated Press, a statement of his foreign policy, especially for the people of the United States.

He ridiculed the suspicion of the aims of the Japanese government, and declared that his policy is not to be either aggressive, revolutionary or militaristic, but purely constructive and progressive.

In speaking of his government's attitude toward the Chinese question, the new premier said that it is the aim and hope of Japan to see that the Oriental republic obtains the full benefits of the fruits of modern civilization and learning. He added that he had not discussed the questions relating to China with his colleagues.

He said: "Any idea that I shall wave the sword while I am prime minister of Japan is based upon a wholly false comprehension of my career and is a misconception of Japan. Tell America that my earnest and constant endeavor will be to promote the friendly relations between the two nations. Because I have been a successful soldier shall not prevent me from being a prudent minister. I come to office as a statesman seeking the lasting interests of Japan, and not as a military man seeking military glory for the country. 'I have not discussed the questions concerning Sino-Japanese relations with my colleagues. Speaking generally,

Japan's ambition is to have China benefit from the fruits of the world's civilization and progress. 'So long as the vital interests of Japan are not infringed, I will take no aggressive step against any nation, especially the United States. Naturally we doubt the future, and our policies have resulted in alliances with Russia and Great Britain, but this does not imply that we shall disregard the fostering of friendships with other nations especially America. 'My policy is not to be revolutionary, nor is it to be aggressive, and certainly not militaristic. I wish and hope it will be purely constructive.' Count Terauchi completed his statement by laughing at those who would hold suspicious of the Japanese people and the aims of the Japanese government.

TWO TEUTON DIVERS SUNK BY RUSSIAN TORPEDOBOAT

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

CHRISTIANIA, October 10.—A Russian torpedo-boat has reported sinking two German submarines after they had attacked a Russian wireless station at Sepravelak, on the Murman or Baltic Sea coast. The submarines had risen to the surface and opened fire with the guns upon the station. Several of those at the wireless station were killed by the shells.

PARIS REPORTS BLOWING UP OF AUSTRIAN BATTLESHIP

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

PARIS, October 10.—According to a despatch from Zurich, Switzerland, one of Austria's largest battleships was recently blown up at Pola, on the Adriatic Sea. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

only one, is still uncertain. The captain of one of the Norwegian steamers reported to his owners that he saw three of the divers. Others declare that there was but one, and naval men are inclined to accept this last as the correct theory.

Raiders Disappear.

Nothing has been heard of the submarine or submarines since Sunday afternoon, shortly before sundown. Vanishing from the waters where six and perhaps nine vessels have been sent to the bottom, the German submarines U-53 and the other two believed to have been with her have disappeared entirely from the sea lanes since they torpedoed the merchant steamers.

The mystery of the present location of the raiders is worrying shipping men greatly. Both liners and freighters approaching or leaving this and other Atlantic ports are taking unusual precautions and often running at high speed.

Carries worth millions are at stake in this race against the possibility of destruction, and there is also fear that lives will be lost by the sinking of vessels unwarmed.

Object Back of Raid.

The question of the objects back of the obvious one of attacking belligerent commerce, which the German raiders had in coming so far from their base of supplies, appears to be puzzling the military and naval authorities and officers in Europe, where the submarine situation is occupying almost as much space in the newspapers as the daily grist of war news. The despatches from Paris yesterday quote the Gaulois, one of the best known of the French newspapers, as having said editorially:

"Germany is convinced that by extending her field of assassination to American waters she will bring about a peace movement through the United States. She imagines that American merchants and trusts, seeing the ocean commerce shattered and trade paralyzed, will demand that Washington intervene for peace or force Great Britain to lift the commercial blockade. 'Berlin believes also that with the presidential election approaching, President Wilson will accede to these demands and that advantage will be gained for the cause of the Central Powers.

SUDDEN FLAMES TRAP UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

MADISON, Wisconsin, October 10.—Fifteen hundred students of the University of Wisconsin, men and women of all classes, were placed in imminent peril of their lives today when a sudden burst of flame ran through a lower hall of the main university building.

No rapidly did the flames spread from the moment of their discovery that hundreds of students were cut off from ordinary exits and had to take to fire escapes, or go down temporary ladders, while many others rushed through the smoke of the stairways and lower halls and reached the outer air safely.

So far as is known there was not a single casualty, not even an injury in the jam of fleeing students. The origin of the fire is unknown. The structure was swept from end to end and destroyed, with the loss of much valuable equipment.

Big Ed Pfeffer Twirls His Team To Victory In Battle Royal

JACK COOMBS STARTS BUT IS RETIRED IN SEVENTH

Tremendous Throngs Go Wild As Brooklyn Boys Cinch the Contest

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

BROOKLYN, October 10.—The Brooklyn Dodgers with Ed Pfeffer, the giant twirler at his best, yesterday won the third game of the world's series by 4 to 3.

Jack Coombs, hero of three world's series and the man who has the unique distinction of never having been beat in a championship contest, started for the Superbas, but was relieved in the seventh by Pfeffer. Coombs felt himself slipping and requested that he be removed from the box. It was a case of self-denial pure and simple, and the former Athletic star received great praise for his act. His playing was of the highest order. He allowed the Red Sox seven hits during his time on the mound. When Larry Gardner, the slugging third-sacker of the Sox slamed one of Coombs' straight shots for a home run, Robins replaced him with Pfeffer.

Tremendous Throngs Go Wild As Brooklyn Boys Cinch the Contest

A celebration, of extraordinary fervor, followed the game. The crowds of people that filled every conceivable space in the park went wild. They warmed upon the diamond, and formed in a long serpentine. The thousands of rooters were completely carried away with enthusiasm. Cans, hats, bottles, in fact, whatever was available was thrown into the air by the jubilant crowd. Probably never before on a baseball diamond has an exhibition of his nature taken place. The victory was celebrated more like a big football victory, than any other recent blance.

A great deal of confusion was experienced in handling the tickets yesterday. The tremendous crowd, eager to get within the gates made it more than difficult for the men behind the box office windows to deal with them properly.

Mays Opens For Red Sox

Carl Mays started on the hill for the Red Sox but was removed in the 16th by Bill Carrigan after Ivor Olson had tripled and scored two runners, and replaced by George Foster. Foster had twice been under the glare of the big calcium, and using all the knowledge he possessed of the pitching game, held the Dodgers safe over the rest of the journey.

Brooklyn, according to the figures as entered on yesterday's contest. They outbatted Carrigan's slugging by three hits and did not make an error. In fact there was only one error made during the entire game, and that by Gardner, who repeated his feat of the day before, with a wild throw.

The weather was cold and clear. There were 21,087 people crowded in the Brooklyn Park to witness the battle. The receipts were $89,670, of which the player's share is $37,671. The clubs each get $12,557, while the commission's share is $6,796.

HUGHES ONCE MORE FLAYS PRESIDENT

Republican Candidate For the White House Attacks Foreign Policy of Wilson

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

BAITMORE, October 11.—Charles Evans Hughes, Republican candidate for the Presidency, again assailed the home and foreign policy of Mr. Wilson in his address here last night.

The hall was filled with a cheering crowd when Mr. Hughes appeared and the G. O. P. standard bearer was frequently interrupted in his speech by the cheers at some point he made.

The administration's policy for promoting the growth of American foreign trade was the target of most of the candidate's shafts. He declared that the protection promised in the Democratic platform of 1912 had been elaborately and deplorably refused to them when the crisis came.

He took up the much discussed Adamson eight-hour day bill and bitterly attacked Mr. Wilson's stand for the measure, when it was pending, declaring that it was a palpable surrender to force in the hands of the unions, and a mere political move to stave off the necessity of making a decision, might have cost him the votes of the union men of the country.

Mr. Hughes also took up the question of Democratic extravagance.

"We have had dinner into our ears the cry that the Republican party was the party of extravagance, but this can never be said by a Democratic speaker again."

He pointed out the huge total of the appropriations made by the last congress and declared that it far exceeded anything the Republicans had ever dreamed of.

INSURANCE RATES ON U. S. SHIPS WILL NOT INCREASE

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

WASHINGTON, October 11.—According to information given out here yesterday there will be no increase in the insurance rates on vessels because of the recent raids of German submarines. This announcement was made because of the fact that only American ships and American cargoes are insured by American insurance companies. Foreign bottoms are no risk to insurance companies operating under American jurisdiction.

Mowrey and Scott scored on Olson's smashing triple to deep left-center. Scott threw out Miller. Two runs.

Sixth Inning

Boston—Olson threw out Thomas. Henriksen was sent to bat for Mays and walked. He scored on Hooper's long triple to right center. Janvrie popped to Cutshaw. Hooper then scored on Shorten's single. Coombs bled out Hobitzel, ending a great rally. Coombs appeared as cool as ever, but Boston fans were jubilant. Two runs.

Brooklyn—Foster now pitching for Boston. Coombs lined flied to Scott. Myers popped out to Gardner. Daubert tripled and was sent on from third in a desperate effort to score, but the ball was relayed in to Catcher Thomas who clapped it to Jake for an out. One run.

Seventh Inning

Boston—Lewis went out to first. Gardner hit a home run. Pfeffer replaced Coombs. Scott flied to Myers and Thomas fanned. Coombs was still going well, but Manager Robinson feared he was weakening and rushed in Pfeffer. One run.

Brooklyn—Stengel flied to Hooper. Wheat singled and stole second. Cutshaw flied to Hobitzel. Foster threw out Mowrey. No runs.

Boston—Foster fanned. Pfeffer tossed out Hooper on an easy grounder. Janvrie fanned. No runs.

Brooklyn—Foster threw out Olson. Miller went out at first. Pfeffer aimed to right. Myers fanned. No runs.

Ninth Inning

Boston—Shorten fouled out to Wheat. Olson threw out Hobitzel. Lewis flied to Stengel. No runs.

Pfeffer pitched the last inning like a spelunker, and in the last frame sent the men back to the bench in order, two of them being easy flies and Hobitzel's grounder one that Olson bled nicely and shot to first base.

FILIPINOS HELD ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Ten Arrested After Discovery of Body Beneath Bridge Near Laupahoehe

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

Ten Filipinos were arrested yesterday at Laupahoehe, according to wire news received here from Hilo, on suspicion of being more or less connected with the murder of a fellow countryman a few days ago. Hilo reports announce that the body of a dead Filipino was discovered beneath a bridge near Laupahoehe. The man, said his neck broken, in addition to which other injuries had brought on death. It seemed that the Filipinos had been murdered and his body thrown over the bridge into the gulch below.

HILO, October 9.—Where the government road crosses the Hawaii Consolidated Railway's tracks near Laupahoehe over a bridge the sides of the road are well guarded and it would seem almost impossible that anyone should fall over to the tracks below, so when the body of a man was found beside the track under this bridge last Thursday, Deputy Sheriff House Martin became suspicious. It was found that the man's neck was broken and there were wounds upon his face and head. Since that time a thorough investigation has been under way and it was announced today that there is some evidence that the man had met with foul play. The dead man is Domingo Cuda, a Filipino plantation laborer. The night before his body was found Cuda attended a party and there was much drinking of cheap wine. Before he started for home it is known that he was under the influence of liquor.

An inquest has been called for next Thursday by Deputy Sheriff Martin, at which time the evidence collected to date will be placed before the coroner's jury.

At Washington it is said he is returning on a vacation.
